Serving the society since 2011

Welcome to Princeton Foundation.

We appreciate your interest in the philanthropic endeavors we have been running since 2011.

Princeton foundation for Peace & Learning is a 501 (c)(3) global non-profit organization registered in the USA. We initiated our philanthropic work in 2011 in Varanasi, a holy city in northern part of India. Our initial focus was on Women Empowerment through higher education. In 2016, we expanded our endeavors in the fields of Healthcare, and World Peace.

Women Empowerment

Women's literacy rates are significantly lower than men's in most developing countries including India. To address this gap, Princeton Foundation has been rolling out several programs in phased manner in alignment with the United Nation's Girls Task Force vision -

1. Educate girls: Ensure that girls have access to higher education and training, including secondary education, and pathways between formal and non-formal systems.
2. Promote girl leaders: Ensure that girls gain economic and social skills and are from mentors and resources to enable them to participate in community life.
3. Improve girls' health: Ensure that girls have access to age-appropriate health and nutrition information and services, including STD prevention, and sexual and reproductive health.
4. Keep girls free from violence: Prevent and protect girls from all forms of gender-based violence, abuse and exploitation, and ensure that vulnerable girls receive services and access to justice.
5. Count girls: Collect, analyze, and use data on girl child to advocate for, develop and monitor evidence-based policies and programs that advance their well-being and realize their human rights.

Princeton Foundation for Peace and Learning

National Fellowship for Peace & Learning: This program started in 2011 to support the college education of girls who have braved valiantly against all the hurdles to reach the top government colleges in India. So far, almost 300 fellowships have been awarded across India.

In the session 2022-23, One hundred exceptionally brilliant students were selected through an all-India competition, representing more than 10 states of the country. These students are pursuing degree courses at top colleges in science, humanities, and technology.

Mentorship: The global experts who are members of Princeton Foundation have carefully crafted a mentorship program to kindle a spark and ignite a fire within the winners that will be too fierce to be doused by anyone and anything and will sustain amidst every storm of the life. The program is structured to cultivate the winners of Fellowship for Peace and Learning as the future leaders of the world.

Corporate Internship: In collaboration with companies as part of their Corporate Social Responsibility, we organize corporate internships for the winners of our fellowship program. The internships not only bolster financial situation of our winners, but also provide them real world experience and professional mentorship from the experienced executives supervising them. The internship, in turn, also helps the corporations as they have access to a pool of exceptionally brilliant and highly motivated students whom they can cultivate as future potential employees and executives.

"The fellowship for peace learning has multifarious effects on academic life of our students. This financial support contributes significantly in maintaining the career orientation of students in a society, where career is still a leisure activity for girls. The institution greatly appreciates your earnest endeavors towards promoting girls' education."

Princeton Foundation appreciates donation of 20,000 Lbs of medical supplies from Boston Children's Hospital, Harvard for Covid relief in India

Heal the Humanity 1.0 In this phase, we methodically established strategic partnerships with the Government of India and Maersk Shipping Corporation, to restore the Supply Chain. Armed with the support of Govt of India and Maersk, we reached out to our network of institutions. Within a span of less than 2 weeks, we received pledges of medical supplies worth more than 15 million USD, including a major donation from Harvard. Maersk provided pro bono shipping services and delivered these supplies in India.

Heal the Humanity 2.0

We are now expanding our endeavor across the globe to strengthen the healthcare systems under the guidance and supervision of global experts. This will enhance donations and shipping of philanthropic medical supplies including medicines, vaccines, and other medical products from anywhere in the world to anywhere needed. This structured and streamlined endeavor works on the principles of the 'economy of scale' as well as 'economy of scope' and bolsters the conglomeration of Government-Corporation-

"Covid pandemic has posed substantial technical and ethical challenges highlighting the urgent need of enhanced collaboration amongst healthcare professionals across the globe to further strengthen the healthcare systems. Such multilateral knowledge and resource sharing is key to bolster global endeavors in managing communicable as well as and non-communicable diseases."

Nongovernment agencies as exemplified by the 'Heal the Humanity 1.0'. Such collaborations with a long-term sustainable vision are needed to make the world a better place.

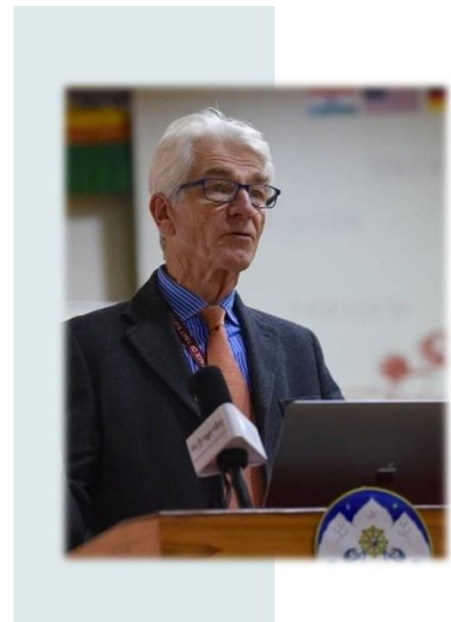

World Peace

Princeton foundation works with Global Peace Organizations to cultivate a Non-Violent and respectful society. We recently sponsored a project led by Kreddha, a non-profit global organization working towards the sustainable resolution of (violent) conflicts between population groups and the governments of states. This seminal work involved multi-year global research of seventy reputable global scholars from the University of British Columbia, Vancouver, the Austrian Academy of Sciences, Vienna, the Center for Southeast Asian Studies of the National University, Singapore, the University of California Los Angeles, and the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton. The results were published as a book, Sacred Mandates by University of Chicago press. The book has received rave reviews across the globe as a definitive historical guide to international and intrastate relations in Asia, of interest to policymakers and scholars alike, for years to come.

Princeton Foundation for Peace and Learning is a concrete expression of the deep sense of responsibility and compassion felt by its founders, as well as of their belief in the potential of human beings for good. It is a true honor to be associated with this well conceived initiative that focuses on some of the most fundamental conditions for human happiness in today's complex world; peace, education and health, in the real, broad, meanings of those concepts.

The generous support of Princeton Foundation not only helped us to complete the publication of our work on understanding Asian conflicting historical perspectives and to apply those insights to promoting Sino-Tibetan dialogue, it is also enabling us to explore new engagements we have been asked to undertake. It is crucial to our success that we are supported by those who understand the sensitive nature of our work.

Executive President, Kreddha

This year, Sacred Mandates received the prize for the best book for teaching Asian international relations from the International Institute of Asian Studies, one of the leading institutions in the field.

Looking Ahead

Having established the structure, the Standard Operating Policies and Procedures, several strategic partnerships, and more importantly, the ‘Proof of Concept’ in our various endeavors, we are now poised to take our philanthropic endeavors from the phase of “Initiation” to the phase of “Expansion”. As we enter this phase, we trust, we hope, and we pray that by the time you read this concluding statement,

I am proud of Princeton Foundation’s commitment to serve the humanity. I have been associated with this foundation since its inception and have seen its precise and strategic approach to manage social issues.

I am also glad to be a part of Princeton Foundation’s Covid relief measures that I am confident will expand quickly into humanitarian endeavors across the globe and serve the society in every imaginable way.
